Remote Access Control Panel Requires Password (10/96)

Article Created: 16 October 1996

TOPIC -----

I have an Apple Remote Access (ARA) Personal Server on my network. In the Remote Access Setup control panel, when selecting the Answer calls checkbox, I get a dialog with the message "A password is required to set answering on this network", and a field for the password. I entered my personal password, but it was not accepted. What is wrong?

DISCUSSION -----

AppleTalk networks have the ability to lock out remote access including ARA. The network administrator enables or disables this feature with the Security Zone feature. You have to obtain a password from your Network administrator.

The Security Zone feature prevents the unauthorized remote access of an AppleTalk network.
