LocalTalk PC: No User or Document Name on Print Server Screen

This article last reviewed: 2 August 1989

TOPIC -----

When the users of the LocalTalk PC card spool documents to the AppleShare Print Server, the operation works fine and the documents print properly. However, the user name and the document name field on the print server screen are blank.

DISCUSSION -----

Document and user name data are normally sent to the print server by the PostScript driver. As written, most of the drivers supplied with PC applications do not provide this information to the spooler. There is currently no way around this limitation.
