Express Modem: DAA Converters To RJ-11 (6/94)

Article Created: 8 June 1994

TOPIC -----

I'm travelling from England to other places in the world (including the U.S.), and I'm having problems finding the correct adapter to connect the Express Modem's port and DAA (Data Access Arrangement) on my PowerBook 180c to the U.S. telephone systems RJ-11. Is there a good place to look for this adapter?

DISCUSSION -----

Yes, there's a company based in England with a U.S. office that specializes in these adapters. The company is TeleAdapt which provides worldwide connectivity for travelling portable computer users. Ideally you brought your DAA cable (which has a 8-pin minicircular connector on the PowerBook end and the telephone plug on the other end) to use with the adapters available from TeleAdapt. To locate a vendor's address and phone number, use the vendor name as a search string.
