Macintosh Quadra 950: Color Addition Extension (10/94)

Article Created: 18 May 1992

Article Reviewed/Updated: 3 October 1994

TOPIC -----

When a color monitor is connected to the on-board video circuitry of some early Macintosh Quadra 950 systems, AND the Monitors control panel is set to millions of colors, certain color manipulation commands may not work in some graphics application programs. The problem isn't destructive. The system won't crash, and data won't be corrupted.

To correct the problem, upgrade to system software version 7.1 or later. Or install the system extension called 950 Color Addition, as described below.

DISCUSSION -----

What Is the 950 Color Addition Extension? -----

950 Color Addition is a system software extension that fixes a minor problem on Macintosh Quadra 950 computers. This extension has no function on other Macintosh models.

Where Do I Get It? -----

These articles can help you locate the software update mentioned here:

- "Where To Find Apple Software Updates"
Lists online services for "free" Apple software updates.
- "Obtaining Apple Product Support in the USA"
Lists 800 numbers and online services for software updates, Apple support information, and a subset of the Apple Tech. Info. Library.

How To Install It -----

- 1) Insert the "Macintosh Quadra Extra" floppy disk in the floppy disk drive.
- 2) Drag the 950 Color Addition icon into the System Folder on your startup disk.
- 3) When a message asks you if you want the 950 Color Addition to be stored in the Extensions folder, click OK.

Note: If the 950 Color Addition is already installed in your Extensions folder, you don't need to reinstall it. When you are asked whether you want to replace the 950 Color Addition, click Cancel.

4) Restart your Macintosh Quadra 950.

If you Reinstall System Software

If you later reinstall system software, you will need to repeat the above procedure.
