TOPIC -----

Can I connect to the UPI wire service from a Macintosh?

DISCUSSION -----

According to UPI (United Press International), all you need is a:

- Modem
- Communications program
- Subscription to the UPI service

News services like UPI are aimed at media clients: newspapers, magazines, radio, and television. Direct connections to these services are more expensive than the average individual can afford. For those interested in news services, an alternative is to use commercial network services like CompuServe or GENie. These are far less expensive, but contain a wide range of information.
