AppleShare: Making Applications AppleShare-Aware

This article last reviewed: 29 January 1989

TOPIC ---

I have written my own trader workstation software in Think C. Now, as part of a rollout to 12 countries, I want to make the software AppleShare-aware.

Who should I contact for information?

DISCUSSION --

Apple Technical Note #167 documents the differences between AppleShare-aware applications and standard Macintosh applications. It details the rules you must follow to allow AppleShare and your application to run on the same machine.

(NOTE: Technical Notes are available from APDA [search in the Tech Info Library], from Apple Developer Technical Services, or on AppleLink under the heading "MacDTS".)

If you need assistance beyond the information provided in the technical note, we strongly suggest that you become an Apple Partner to obtain development support from Developer Services.
