TOPIC -----

Can I change the colors of windows and dialog boxes?

DISCUSSION -----

Yes. The System 7 Color Control Panel lets you change both the color used for highlighting text and the color scheme used for windows, scroll bars, and dialog boxes.

To do this, open the Color Control Panel and click the "window color" pop-up menu. From this menu you can select various color schemes or black-and-white.

You may also choose from several color desktop patterns in the General Controls Control Panel.
