The Finder seems to restart itself or crash occasionally when I try to save a copy of a stationery document. This happens when I double-click the document in the Finder and attempt to save the copy to a floppy disk.

DISCUSSION ------------------------------------------------------
```

There is a known problem with the Save In option of stationery documents created from older "stationery-unaware" applications.

The problem occurs after you double-click on a stationery document, choose Save In, and then insert a floppy disk. When you choose to save the document on the floppy disk, you will either get an error or the system will return to the Finder without saving the document.

The problem does not occur when you mount a floppy disk before you open the stationery document.
