Macintosh: Font Sizes

When using the Font D/A Mover, you may notice that some fonts show a different memory size, depending on what version of system file you're accessing. The fonts distributed by Apple have not actually changed in size; rather, a FOND resource was added to the System file with the introduction of the LaserWriter Plus. When the Font D/A Mover calculates the size of a font in bytes, the FOND resource for that font is also included. If you need to know a font's actual size, use ResEdit and do a Get Info for the font.
