Macintosh: Insufficient Room to Copy a Document (10/94)

Article Created: 11 March 1985

Article Reviewed/Updated: 17 October 1994

TOPIC -----

When I try to copy a document to another floppy disk or hard disk, sometimes a dialog box appears: "There is insufficient room to copy your document" appears. What does this mean?

DISCUSSION -----

There may not be enough temporary work space for your Macintosh to comply with your request. Although there may appear to be plenty of room on the disk, you must free up space on the source disk until your Macintosh can complete the task.
