TOPIC ---

Is there a way to have the Color StyleWriter Pro go through an extensive purging of the print head without having a computer attached to the unit?

DISCUSSION --

Yes. To place the unit into diagnostic mode, press and hold the select and power buttons while you plug in the power cord. Press the select button until the black, cyan, and yellow LED's (labeled 5, 4, and 2 on the controller board) light up, then press the power button. This causes the printer to go into an extended purging mode, where it continuously purges the print head for each of the colors until you power the unit off.

This feature is useful if you suspect a clogged print head, or if you have a new print head that you suspect needs additional priming in order to get the ink flowing.
