TOPIC -----

Will Apple offer a mounting bracket/carrier (as a Service Stock item or Finished Goods product) for adding internal storage devices to the Macintosh Quadra 900, or will we rely on third parties to manufacture and sell mounting brackets that fit our design?

DISCUSSION -----

Apple developed a carrier form for third parties, so they can manufacture their own forms. Apple does not manufacture a form for sale to the general public. We recommend customers contact the company who developed the drive.

Apple Partners and Associate developers can contact Developer Technical Support if they are a manufacturer of internal storage devices and would like information on bundling a carrier and power cable with their product and are interested in other related issues such as SCSI termination guidelines.
