World Wide Web Consultants (4/95)

Article Created: 19 April 1995

TOPIC -----

In light of all the recently released information about World Wide Web (WWW) access to the internet, I was wondering if there is a listing of any consultants out there who can help a small company or individual set up their own Web site?

DISCUSSION -----

You might try the following Universal Resource Locator (URL):

<http://macweb.batnet.com/>

MACWEB.COM contains information helpful to companys and organizations considering the Macintosh as a platform for electronic publishing on the Internet's World Wide Web.

There is a link on this page to a consultants listing:

<http://macweb.batnet.com/macwww/consultants.acgi>

This Web site lists consultants available throughout the world who are experts in electronic publishing on the Internet's World Wide Web using Apple Macintosh and compatible computers.
