AppleFax Modem: FaxGate Allows Some Networking Capability

This article last reviewed: 15 January 1990

QUESTION -----

Does anyone have any suggestions for a "networkable" AppleFax Modem?

RESPONSE -----

The AppleFax Modem and AppleFax software was not designed for use in a Fax server environment. You might take a look at Solutions International's FaxGate. It lets a Macintosh send a message to a second Macintosh with a locally-connected AppleFax Modem via QuickMail or Microsoft Mail. The sending Macintosh, running FaxGate in the background, transmits the message over the AppleFax Modem. Note that this product is for transmitting Fax messages, not receiving them.
