Color StyleWriter Pro: Initial Startup time (3/94)

Article Created: 2 March 1994

TOPIC -----

The first time I turned on my Color StyleWriter Pro, it took about 6 minutes before it was ready to use. Is this normal?

DISCUSSION -----

Yes, this is normal the first time the printer is turned on. The next time it should be ready in about two minutes or less. The initial startup cycle is called refreshing the printer. During this operation each color head is cleaned and wiped twice and the jets are cleaned of air bubbles that may developed in shipping. The process uses about 0.47 grams of ink per cartridge or 5.9%.
